The story of the wine...

2018 Grenache

The Story of the Wine: In 2018 I was lucky enough to become a new father not once, but twice! Sort of... The first of my two children was a parcel of Grenache born and raised in McLaren Vale, South Australia. Although lovingly coddled through its infancy in the vineyard, it was in for some old fashioned tough love. The parenting techniques employed included partial crushing, a nice cold soak and a daily stomping for good measure. The other child was a beautiful baby boy names Henry, who being practically perfect in every way required no such treatment. His only apparent flaw is the inability to share a bottle of wine with his dad. So, with an eye to the future this wine was made to hopefully be drinking as deliciously as it is now when Henry and I can cheers his birth in the years to come.

Tasting Notes: Vibrant red fruits and earthy spice, some dried twigs and elegant spice from some older oak. The wine has a density of fruit but is all about finesse on the palate. Wild herbs, crushed dried raspberry and some black cherry, a wine that feels both rich and lithe at the same time, try with some slow roasted lamb.
